BUCYRUS, Ohio - Do you know the difference between ice made from distilled water and ice made in your own freezer?

The clear commercial variety from distilled water is harder, it doesn't melt as fast, and it allows your drink to get colder, because there is no air in the ice. This also means there will be less dilution of the drink. "Ice from home freezers is usually cloudy, because it contains air," said Edward J. Dager, president of the Bucyrus Ice Company here
